Free legal help from Australia's best law firms

Are you spending time you don't have dealing with your organisation's legal, compliance and governance issues instead of the important work of helping your community?

At Not-for-profit Law, we provide solutions to common problems that community groups face. We believe that your time is better spent providing vital services to those who need it, rather than grappling with governance, privacy and volunteer policies.

We are currently accepting applications from NCOSS-member organisations for help with the following key areas of legal risk:

- Employee and volunteer agreements
- Property and leasing
- Privacy
- Commercial contracts
- Risk management and insurance, and
- Intellectual property.

If you have a problem that falls under any one or more of the above areas of law, then Not-for-profit Law will seek to refer your matter to a participating law firm for pro bono assistance.
